

Atif Khalil is an associate professor in the Department of Religious Studies at the University of Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada, where he has been teaching for more than a decade. He currently oversees the University's Khan Endowment which was established to promote the academic study of Islam in southern Alberta. His research interests lie in Sufism, Islamic theology and philosophy, Islamic virtue ethics, the Judeo-Islamic tradition, and comparative mysticism. He is the author of Repentance and the Return to God: Tawba in Early Sufism (Albany: SUNY Press, 2018), and co-editor of In Search of the Lost Heart: Explorations in Islamic Thought (Albany: SUNY Press, 2012). Khalil is currently working on a monograph on the theory and practice of dhikr in Sufism and co-editing a book on the intersection of mysticism and ethics in Islam. He has published more than two dozen articles in such peer-reviewed journals as The Muslim World, Studia Islamica, Philosophy East and West, and Studies in Religion. In 2016 he served as the Kenan Rifai Visiting Research Professor at the Institute for Advanced Humanistic Studies at the University of Beijing, China. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Toronto, Canada.
