

Etin Anwar [anwar@hws.edu] is assistant professor of religious studies at Hobart and William Smith Colleges, Geneva, New York. She teaches introductory classes on Islam, women in Islam, gender and globalization, and Islamic ethics and politics. She is the author of Gender and Self in Islam (Routledge, 2006). She has published several articles on Ibn Sina, Meister Eckhart, Ibn Arabi, and women's movements in Indonesia in various journals including Islamic Studies, Islam and Christian-Muslim Relations, and Hanwa. She contributed entries on "The Public Role of Women" and "Harem," in the Encyclopedia of Islam and the Muslim World, Richard Martin, ed. (New York: Macmillan Reference USA, 2004). She has also been featured in the XXI TV documentary: Muslim Women in our Midst: The Path to Understanding in conjunction with America at the Crossroads (2006). Her research interests include Islamic feminism, Islamist anti-Americanism, and khilafah and democracy. She is currently working on the Mazruiana collection on the politics of gender and population titled: The Body Politic and the Human Body.