

Shenila Khoja-Moolji [ssk2143@tc.columbia.edu] is a faculty member in the Department of History and Philosophy at the State University of New York at Old Westbury, where she teaches courses on Muslim cultures, gender, humanities and interfaith relations. Her research interests include Muslim immigrant youth identity, constructions of Muslim girlhoods and boyhoods, gender and sexual citizenship, curriculum theory, and feminist poststructuralist theory. Ms. Khoja-Moolji is pursuing her doctorate at Teachers College, Columbia University and also serves as the Senior Co-Editor for the seventh volume of the Society for International Education journal on gender, sexuality and difference in education. Prior to Columbia University, Ms. Khoja-Moolji attended the Divinity School at Harvard University where she graduated with a Master of Theological Studies focusing on Islamic studies and gender.